Explanation of Performance Attribution

An attribution report explains a portfolio's relative performance against its benchmark. The reports provided include average weight, total return and contribution to return of the stated Dodge & Cox Fund and its corresponding benchmark. Also included is an attribution analysis section broken down into four parts: allocation effect, selection effect, interaction effect, and total effect. Total impact on return vs. benchmark (or total effect) measures the portion of the portfolio's relative return attributed to the allocation, selection, and interaction effects. Brief descriptions of the remaining data points are provided below.

- Average weight: The portfolio average weight of a position reflects the average value of the position relative to all of the securities in the portfolio. Standard portfolio- and group-level weights are the sums of security-level weights.
- Total return: The portfolio total return is the rate of return from changes in market value (price return) and earned income, such as dividends or coupon payments.
- Contribution to return: The portfolio contribution to return is calculated by multiplying the beginning weight of a security by the portfolio return. Standard portfolio- and group-level contributions are the sums of security-level contributions.
- Allocation effect: The allocation effect measures whether the overweighting or underweighting of sectors relative to a benchmark contributes positively or negatively to the overall portfolio return.
- Selection effect: The selection effect measures the investment manager's ability to select securities within a given sector relative to a benchmark.
- Interaction effect: The interaction effect measures the combined impact of an investment manager's selection and allocation decisions within a sector. Positive interaction effect indicates when our portfolio is overweight a sector and outperforms the benchmark or underweight a sector and underperforms the benchmark.

To calculate these effects, Dodge & Cox employs FactSet, which uses the following arrangements largely based on two assumptions a) we have a non-cash portfolio; b) we do not have intraday trading activities.

Additional Notes

For all periods of one year or less, the attached attribution analyses use the forward-looking methodology, which incorporates an ongoing opportunity cost or benefit for securities that are no longer held in the portfolio. A benefit of this methodology is that the portfolio is not disproportionately rewarded or penalized for recent portfolio decisions.

The total returns calculated by FactSet in the attribution analysis will differ from published Fund performance for many reasons, some of which are listed below:

- The analysis excludes cash, short-term investments, certain hybrid securities, and certain derivatives such as index futures and currency forwards.
- The analysis is gross of fees and expenses whereas Fund returns are published net of fees and expenses.
- The analysis typically uses daily weights and returns, which does not consider actual transaction prices.
- FactSet typically calculates returns using its own pricing sources, which could differ from those used by the Funds.
- Actual dividends received might be different from the dividends assumed to be received in the analysis because of differences in tax withholding rates applicable to a given Fund and tax withholding rates assumed by benchmark indices used in the attribution analysis.
- A security's sector classification may change over time.

Attribution effects cannot be recreated from the weights and returns displayed in the analysis. The weights are averages over the selected time period. Each attribution effect is computed daily and linked through time.

The Stock, International Stock, Global Stock, Emerging Markets Stock, and Balanced Funds focus on the underlying financial condition and prospects of individual companies, including future earnings, cash flow, and dividends. Various other factors, including financial strength, economic condition, competitive advantage, quality of the business franchise, financially material environmental, social, and governance (ESG) issues, and the reputation, experience, and competence of a company's management are weighed against valuation in selecting individual securities. The Funds also consider the economic and political stability of the country where the issuer is located, and the protections provided to shareholders.
